DECLARATION OF TIMOTHY LIBERT IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS'
MOTION FOR INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

Date: April 13, 2017
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Crtrm.: 4, 5th Floor
Judge: Hon. Edward J. Davila

2           1.       My name is Timothy Libert and I am of sound mind, over the age of eighteen years 3 old, capable of making this Declaration, and personally acquainted with the facts stated herein.

4           2.       I am a Doctoral Candidate at the University of Pennsylvania where I am currently 5 writing my dissertation on the topic of third-party web tracking. I first learned web site coding 6 techniques in 1999 and have continued to author and analyze web pages for the last 17 years. I 7 have written a study on the topic of tracking on health web sites titled “Privacy Implications of 8 Health Information Seeking on the Web” which was published in the March 2015 edition of 9 Communications of the Association for Computing Machinery (“CACM”). CACM is among the 10 oldest, most respected, and most cited Computer Science publications in existence and my study 11 went through rigorous peer and editorial review prior to publication. In addition, I jointly authored 12 a related article, “What Web Browsing Reveals About Your Health”, with two physician-13 professors from the University of Pennsylvania medical school. The article was peer-reviewed and 14 published in The BMJ (formerly known as The British Medical Journal). The BMJ has been in 15 publication since 1840 and is the fourth most cited general medical journal. I also contributed an 16 essay on the topic of online health privacy to a collection published by the Open Technology 17 Institute at the New America Foundation which was subsequently submitted to the U.S. Federal 18 Trade Commission. I have provided expert advice to numerous journalists on topics related to web 19 tracking and have been interviewed on the topic of health privacy online on National Public 20 Radio’s All Things Considered. My research has been covered in news outlets in over 20 21 countries. Since 2012 I have given over 20 invited lectures and refereed conference presentations 22 on topics related to online privacy and human rights in 10 different countries across three 23 continents.

24           3.       Internet users employ web browsers to send and receive electronic 25 communications.

26           4.       Web browsers are software applications that allow consumers to send, receive, and 27 view electronic communications on the Internet.

28   ///

1           5.       The most popular web browsers include Apple Safari, Google Chrome, Microsoft 2 Internet Explorer, Microsoft Edge, Mozilla Firefox, and Opera. I am intimately familiar with the 3 functioning of web browsers.

4           6.       Every web site is hosted by a computer server through which it sends and receives 5 communications with Internet users via their web browsers to display web pages on users' 6 monitors and screens, depending upon the individual user's chosen computing device.

7           7.       A web page is displayed on an end-user's screen through the processing of "source 8 code" which is written in the Hypertext Markup Language (HTML). Source code contains the 9 written instructions that allow a user's web browser to display content and text, manage user 10 interactions with the page, and other such tasks.

11          8.       Although a web page appears on a user's screen as a complete product, it is, in 12 reality, an assembled collage of independent elements which may be visible or non-visible.
13 Examples of visible elements are pictures and videos, non-visible elements may include computer 14 code such as Javascript and Cascading Style Sheets.

15          9.       Regardless of type, individual page elements may be downloaded from computers 16 owned and operated by distinct entities, oftentimes private companies. The instructions of what 17 servers to download elements from are included in the page source code and are carried out by the 18 web browser.

19          10.      HTML source code is normally read, or 'parsed', in order from top to bottom and 20 left to right. Therefore, code that is written closer to the top of the instructions is often executed 21 before other, later, code.

22          11.      Web browsers utilize the Hypertext Transfer Protocol (HTTP) to initiate Internet 23 connections to web servers in order to download specific web pages and files such as images. One 24 of the basic HTTP commands web browsers use to communicate with web servers is called the 25 'GET command' or 'GET request;' another is the 'POST command' or 'POST request.'

26          12.      Each HTTP request contains several fields of data, called 'headers.' Among these 27 headers are the 'referer' which is the address of either the page a user clicked to reach the current 28 page, or the page currently being rendered, and the 'user-agent' field which identifies the type of 1 computer and web browser being utilized.

2 13. For example, when an Internet user types “www.cancer.org” into the navigation bar 3 of their web browser and hits ‘Enter’ (or, more commonly, when an Internet user clicks on a 4 hyper-link), the user’s browser sends an HTTP request to the server for Cancer.org. This request 5 instructs the Cancer.org server to send the HTML source code file representing the Cancer.org 6 homepage to the user’s web browser for processing and display.

7 14. Upon receiving and processing the HTML source code, the web browser of the user 8 is commanded to initiate many distinct and contemporaneous HTTP requests to both Cancer.org 9 and additional third-party web servers.

10 15. Once the user has instructed the browser to download a page the browser follows 11 the commands contained in the source code of the page. Beyond instructing the browser which 12 page to display, the user has little direct involvement in rendering the page: the source code is in 13 control.

14 16. In order to speed up the rendering and delivery of web page content, modern web 15 browsers often make many HTTP connections in parallel, thus the source code may be 16 commanding the browser to carry out tasks in a sequence and speed which would be impossible 17 for a human.

18 17. Each web server has an Internet Protocol Address (“IP address”). For example, the 19 IP address for the web site www.cancer.org is currently “69.20.25.160.” An IP address, however, 20 is not the same thing as a Uniform Resource Locator, or more commonly, URL. Whereas an IP 21 address may correspond to a server which hosts many web sites, a URL is linked to one specific 22 site only. Merely knowing that a user initiated a connection to the IP address “69.20.25.160” does 23 not necessarily reveal the specific site, nor the specific content the user is requesting. In contrast, a 24 full-string detailed URL (as explained below) reveals both the parties to the communication and 25 oftentimes its content as well.

26 18. A URL is composed of several different parts. For example, consider the following 27 URL: <http://www.cancer.org/cancer/prostatecancer/index>

28 a. http://: This is the protocol identified by the web browser to the web server

1 which sets the basic language of the interaction between browser and server.

2 b. www.cancer.org: This is the fully-qualified domain name (FQDN) that 3 identifies the web site and corresponding web server, with which the 4 Internet user has initiated a communication;

5 c. /cancer/prostatecancer/index: This part of the URL indicates the 6 hierarchical identifier of the requested page within the totality of the 7 Cancer.org web site; sometimes this is a specific directory on the server's 8 file system, but it may also be dynamically evaluated by the server to 9 retrieve content from a database or content management system (CMS).

10 19. Once a user's browser begins to download the elements specified in the HTML 11 source code retrieved from the above URL, the address of that page, known as the 'referrer', is 12 transmitted to the given web server with each subsequent HTTP request. Thus, in this example, 13 any of the third-parties to whom the user makes an HTTP request will be able to determine the 14 user has an interest in prostate cancer by the referer information alone (in this case 15 <http://www.cancer.org/cancer/prostatecancer/index>).

16 20. Rather than constituting mere routing information, as with a numeric IP address, in 17 this example it is clear that the URL is itself sensitive content. This is the case because URLs are 18 intended to be read by users as a form of content in the browser and not just by computers 19 performing networking tasks.

20 21. The contemporaneous HTTP requests to third-parties is initiated through each 21 individual Internet user's web browser at the instruction of source code without any further action 22 or knowledge of the user, often leaving the user unaware that additional parties have been 23 contacted or that personal web browsing habits and interests have been transmitted.

24 22. For example, on the Cancer.org page provided above, the user sends an HTTP 25 request from her or his web browser to Cancer.org by typing the page address into her or his web 26 browser or by clicking on a link to go to that page. Unbeknownst to the user sending the 27 communication, Cancer.org contains Javascript code which commands the user's web browser to 28 make an HTTP request to a Facebook web server. When this request is sent, the user's medical 1 interests as contained in the page URL are communicated to Facebook. Many such requests are 2 made in tandem.

3 23. Without the knowledge, consent, or any action of the user, the entire process 4 happens in milliseconds, with the precise length of time from original HTTP request to final 5 element request determined by the user's computer capabilities, Internet speed, and the speed of 6 the web server and server(s) to which the user's referer URL and HTTP requests are 7 contemporaneously initiated. The third-parties acquire the communications before the web site has 8 completed rendering on the user's web browser.

9 24. Many elements on the page hosted by other servers are not necessary for web sites 10 to provide users with the specific informational content they have requested, including, in this 11 example from Cancer.org, the Javascript code downloaded from the Facebook server.

12 25. Many web sites also use "cookies" to facilitate communications. A "cookie" is a 13 small text file created by the users' web browser at the instruction of a web server or page source 14 code. This text file may be used to store and transmit data whenever a user's web browser interacts 15 with a given web server. Such data may enable companies to identify, authenticate, and track the 16 Internet communications of users who interact with a company's web server. Cookies are 17 generally classified by their duration and the status of the entity using them:

18 a. Classifications by Duration:

- 19 i. "Session cookies" are placed on a user's computing device only for 20 the time period during which the user is navigating the web site that 21 placed the cookie. The user's web browser ordinarily deletes session 22 cookies when the user closes the browser;
- 23 ii. "Persistent cookies" are designed to survive beyond a single 24 Internet-browsing session. The entity creating the persistent cookie 25 determines its lifespan. As a result, a persistent cookie can be used 26 to track and record a user's Internet communications for years.
27 Depending on intended purpose, persistent cookies are sometimes 28 called 'tracking cookies.'

b. Classifications by Party

i. “First party cookies” are set on a user’s device by the web site the user intends to visit and whose address is clearly visible in the browser’s address bar. For example, Cancer.org has a collection of its own cookies that it sets and accesses on user’s browsers when they communicate with the American Cancer Society through Cancer.org.

ii. “Third-party cookies” are set by the web servers of entities other than the web site or entity with which the user intends to communicate. As Facebook’s competitor Google explains: “Third-party cookies are associated with a domain that is separate from the site a user visits.” See

<https://support.google.com/adSense/answer/2839090?hl=en>. The process of third-party cookies is illustrated by Google in a video, where its spokesperson explains, “That’s why they’re called third-party cookies. Because the web site sending the cookies to your browser, usually an ad serving company, is actually a different site from the one you’re visiting.” See video at approximately 2:50 by sending the following communication through a web browser:

<https://www.google.com/intl/en/policies/technologies/cookies>.

Unlike first-party cookies, third-party cookies may have purposes unrelated to direct user needs. Instead, third-party cookies often work in furtherance of data collection, behavioral profiling, and targeted advertising.

26. On July 12, 2016, and September 09, 2016, I used the webXray software version 1.0 following the instructions at <http://webxray.org> to detect the initiation of HTTP requests to Facebook servers which may transmit information relating to Internet-user communications on the following web sites:

27. Scans were performed on separate dates for two main reasons: first, due to inherent limitations of any software technique some network requests may be missed as a result of network congestion and related factors<sup>1</sup>, second, webmasters may change the coding of their websites, resulting in different results at different times.

28. On July 12, 2016, I determined that of the 68 above websites, 12 hosted pages at the following addresses that contained source code that commanded users' web browsers to initiate HTTP connections to Facebook.com which included referer headers revealing the page being viewed:

- a. altonmemorialhospital.org
- b. barnesjewish.org
- c. barnesjewishwestcounty.org
- d. bjsph.org
- e. boone.org

<sup>1</sup> See Libert, Timothy. "Privacy implications of health information seeking on the web." Communications of the ACM 58.3 (2015): 68-77 for additional detail.

- 1 f. cancer.org
- 2 g. ctmc.org
- 3 h. floridahospital.org/children
- 4 i. melanoma.org
- 5 j. missouribaptistsullivan.org
- 6 k. parkridgehealth.org
- 7 l. www.stlouischildrens.org/our-services/hematologyoncology-services

8 It should be noted that 82% of pages did not disclose user data to Facebook, and were fully 9 functional.

10 29. On September 09, 2016, I determined that of the 68 above websites, 20 hosted 11 pages found at the following addresses contained source code which commanded users' web 12 browsers to initiate HTTP connections to Facebook.com which included referer headers revealing 13 the page being viewed:

- 14 a. altonmemorialhospital.org
- 15 b. avistahospital.org
- 16 c. barnesjewish.org
- 17 d. barnesjewishwestcounty.org
- 18 e. bjsph.org
- 19 f. boone.org
- 20 g. cancer.net
- 21 h. cancer.org
- 22 i. castlerockhospital.org
- 23 j. pages.clevelandclinic.org/testicular-cancer-index.html
- 24 k. ctmc.org
- 25 l. flatironsheart.org
- 26 m. floridahospital.org/children
- 27 n. melanoma.org
- 28 o. missouribaptistsullivan.org

- p. mylittletonhospital.org
- q. parkerhospital.org
- r. parkridgehealth.org
- s. porterhospital.org
- t. www.stlouischildrens.org/our-services/oncology-services

It should be noted that 70% of pages did not disclose user data to Facebook, and were fully functional.

30. It should be noted that the source code on the Cleveland Clinic homepage did not command users' browsers to initiate HTTP connections to Facebook servers. However, in September 2016, the page at address <http://pages.clevelandclinic.org/testicular-cancer-index.html> included Javascript code obtained from Oracle subsidiary AddThis, which initiated a Facebook connection.

31. The major source of discrepancy between the two samples is that on September 9, 2016, the six following sites from the Adventist Health System included a common Javascript file from the address <http://www.googletagmanager.com/gtm.js?id=GTM-Z6TQ> which was configured to command users' browsers to initiate HTTP requests to Facebook servers. This file is part of the Google Tag Manager service which promises that websites using the service "can load [elements] faster and data collection can start even before all content appears" and was configured according to Adventist specifications ("GTM-Z6TQ" is the common account identifier used across these sites).

- a. avistahospital.org
- b. castlerockhospital.org
- c. flatironsheart.org
- d. mylittletonhospital.org
- e. parkerhospital.org
- f. porterhospital.org

32. Based on comments embedded in the source code of the above six pages it appears that the Google Tag Manager code had been disabled and then re-enabled on these sites by the

1 Adventist Health System, demonstrating that web masters have full control over the inclusion of 2 such code. Per the source code of avistahospital.org at lines 100 and 101, respectively:

- 3 a. “removed Google Tag Manager [jmayberry (WSOL) 8/25/2016
 4 [7 33. Additionally, on both the July and September 2016 scans, mdanderson.org 8 contained source code which at times commands the browser to make an HTTP request to 9 Liverail, a Facebook subsidiary, as well as Facebook.com. However, the source code is written in 10 such a way that the request is not made consistently and does not directly expose referer 11 information to Facebook. Despite this, during times when the request is made successfully, several 12 cookies are set.](https://wsol.accelo.com/?action=view_issue&id=980]”</li> <li>5 b. “Updated: re-enabling Google Tag Manager per email request from Kevin Guill 6 [jmayberry (WSOL) 8/31/2016]”</li> </ul>

<div data-bbox=)

13 34. Similarly, both www.stlouischildrens.org/our-services/hematologyoncology- 14 services and www.stlouischildrens.org/our-services/oncology-services contained code which 15 initiated requests to Facebook-controlled Liverail domains.

16 35. Further underscoring that websites are dynamic, it should also be noted that on July 17 16, 2016, an HTTP request to Facebook was detected on cancer.net, but as of July 29, 2016, such 18 a request was no longer detected. However, as of September, 2016, a Cancer.net Javascript file 19 initiated a request to Facebook.

20 36. Javascript is a programming language which may be used to command web 21 browsers to carry out complex tasks. Oftentimes a single line in the source code of a page will 22 command the user’s browser to download and execute a much longer Javascript program. Given 23 the power of the Javascript language, such programs may initiate the loading and execution of 24 nearly unlimited amounts of code. In this way, Javascript elements such as the Google Tag 25 Manager and AddThis widget are analogous to clown cars: while they appear small on the outside, 26 an endless number of requests and elements may emerge from them. As noted above, the 27 Cleveland Clinic makes use of the AddThis widget, and several Adventist Health System sites 28 make use of Google Tag Manager.

1           37. On September 19, 2016, it was determined that the pages with the following URLs, 2 which clearly contain sensitive medical content, transmitted referer data to Facebook-controlled 3 domains, thereby revealing the medical concerns of users:

- 4           a. <http://www.cancer.org/cancer/colonandrectumcancer/index>
- 5           b. <http://www.cancer.net/cancer-types/colorectal-cancer>
- 6           c. http://www.barnesjewish.org/Health-Library/View-
7           Content?contentType=42&contentId=ColorectalCancerRisk
- 8           d. <http://pages.clevelandclinic.org/colon-cancer-index.html>
- 9           e. <https://www.melanoma.org/understand-melanoma/pediatric-melanoma>
- 10          f. <https://www.avistahospital.org/AVH/Specialties/GI/Colonoscopy/>

11          38. Once webXray had identified the above pages which commanded users' browsers 12 to initiate HTTP requests to Facebook servers, the "Developer Tools" feature of the Google 13 Chrome browser was manually used to generate reports of network activity in the HTTP Archive 14 (HAR) format for each page.

15          39. According to StatCounter, Chrome is currently the most popular web browser in 16 the United States, thus results from this browser are most representative of how the greatest 17 number of people will interact with the above web sites.

18          40. For each web site, Chrome's "Clear browsing data" option was used to reset all 19 cookies and cached data prior to the site being loaded. Next, the page was loaded to generate a 20 report which is representative of a user who is not logged into Facebook. Finally, a Facebook 21 account was logged into and the page was reloaded to generate a new report, thus producing a 22 snapshot of HTTP activity typical for a logged-in Facebook user.

23          41. HAR data from Chrome was subsequently processed using a custom Python 24 program to extract relevant HTTP request, referer, and cookie data. Following this step, the 25 HTML source code of each page was manually evaluated to determine the process by which 26 commands to users' browsers to initiate HTTP connections to Facebook servers were triggered.
27 This analysis was an in-depth process carried out over several days in July, August, and 28 September 2016.

42. I have attached hereto, as Exhibit A, reports generated by the above techniques, detailing each of the above-listed web sites that contains source code which commands users' web browsers to disclose to Facebook, in real-time, the communications of users who were sending communications to and receiving communications from these web sites, attached to cookie and other information that personally-identifies users to Facebook. These reports include information on the complete timing of all HTTP requests, demonstrating the Facebook requests occur contemporaneously with other requests during page loading. I have also archived relevant HTML and Javascript source code as it pertains directly to commands resulting in Facebook-directed HTTP traffic.

43. The health care entities that run the web sites listed above provide sensitive health care services and information to patients and other users with whom they communicate.

44. Facebook publicly states that it downloads and processes (or 'scrapes') the entire content of every web site with Facebook code on its web pages:

▼ Why and when does Facebook scrape my website?

Facebook needs to scrape links shared to Facebook to know which to link preview information to show on Facebook.com or on Facebook for iOS and Android. This happens every 30 days to ensure the properties are up to date. The linked page is also scraped when the URL is entered into the Debugger Tool.

Facebook observes cache headers on your URLs - it will look at Expires and Cache-Control in order of preference. However, even if you specify a longer time, Facebook will scrape your page every 30 days.

45. Through its scraping process, Facebook has knowledge of all of the above web sites' status as sensitive health care web sites, including medical providers, and knowledge of their Privacy Policies. As stated above, disclosures of user communications to Facebook are not necessary for web sites to deliver informative content to users, including the above-listed web sites. In fact, some of the above-listed web sites did not initiate any disclosure of information to Facebook on at least one date and were fully-functional nonetheless.

46. Among other things, the source code on the health care web sites discloses to 1 Facebook the precise names of articles and possible medical interests that are communicated 2 between each user and each health care web site. For example, a user who communicates with 3 Cancer.org by sending an HTTP request for <http://www.cancer.org/cancer/prostatecancer/index> 4 will download source code which commands their web browser to communicate the full page 5 URL to Facebook during subsequent HTTP requests. These requests include the text: 6 “cancer/prostatecancer.”

7 47. Even without scraping, Facebook is easily able to determine a user has an interest 8 in prostate cancer due to Cancer.org’s decision to include source code which commands the web 9 browser to make an HTTP request to Facebook and thereby transmit URL content.

10 48. It is not necessary for a web site to disclose the detailed name of a request file or 11 article to any third-party. As Facebook engineer Matt Jones explained in 2010:

12 Sometimes referrers just don’t belong – maybe there is sensitive 13 information in a URL, or maybe a site just doesn’t want its users browsers 14 telling others how they use the site ... Facebook is one site where referrers 15 don’t belong. As part of our continued efforts to protect users’ privacy, we proactively protect users from exposing how they navigated to an external site. To this end, we have designed a redirector ... [which] remove[s] the referrer of the page on which the user clicked.

16 49. The source code on the health care web sites commands users’ web browsers to 17 disclose the content of user HTTP requests to Facebook connected to Facebook cookies and other 18 information that is both personally-identifiable to Facebook and deemed personally-identifiable 19 information based on my understanding of HIPAA.

20 50. Based on my reading of the relevant HIPAA code sections, my understanding is 21 that, under HIPAA, individual “identifiers” include names, geographic subdivisions smaller than a 22 state, device identifiers and serial numbers, URLs, IP addresses, and any other unique identifying 23 number, characteristic, or code. 45 C.F.R. § 164.514(b).

24 51. Facebook collects user names, geographic subdivisions, device identifiers, and IP 25 addresses of its users through its sign-up process. Güneş Acar et al. have authored a technical 26 report, “Facebook Tracking Through Social Plugins”<sup>2</sup> which details how Facebook tracks users 27

---

28 <sup>2</sup> See full report at https://securehomes.esat.kuleuven.be/~gacar/fb\_tracking/fb\_plugins.pdf

1 through this information and cookies, including, but not limited to:

- 2 a. the c_user cookie which is a unique alphanumeric identifier assigned to
- 3 each Facebook member;
- 4 b. the datr cookie which is a unique alphanumeric identifier assigned to each
- 5 individual web browser that, in 2015, Facebook began allowing users who
- 6 downloaded all of their Facebook data to learn the last four digits of every
- 7 'datr' cookie Facebook has ever connected to their account which I have
- 8 confirmed by manually examining HAR data;
- 9 c. the lu cookie which is a unique alphanumeric identifier used to denote the
- 10 last Facebook user to log-in to Facebook using the browser at issue, and
- 11 d. the fr cookie which is a unique alphanumeric identifier containing an
- 12 encrypted combination of a user's browser identification and Facebook
- 13 identification.

14 52. Even without cookies, a user's IP address, device, and browser identifier (contained 15 in the 'User-Agent' field) are transmitted to Facebook via HTTP requests and may be used to 16 identify specific computers with a high degree of accuracy, as has been demonstrated by Yen et al.
17 from Microsoft Research.<sup>3</sup>

18 53. It is possible for a web site to incorporate links which direct users to an 19 organization's Facebook page(s) without also disclosing communications and personally-20 identifiable information to Facebook. For example, the Cleveland Clinic home page includes a text 21 link to Facebook, and the Gordon Hospital home page includes a visual Facebook icon which 22 links to Facebook.

23 54. Facebook acquires the communications attached to personally-identifiable 24 information contemporaneous to the communications being sent to and received from certain web 25 sites. If users are logged into Facebook several cookies are also transferred.

55. For example, the coding for the BarnesJewish.org web site places Facebook-supplied code which commands the web browser to initiate an HTTP request to Facebook prior to the main textual content of the page:

319      <!-- Facebook -->
320
321
322
323      <script>(function (d, s, id) {
324
325          var js, fjs = d.getElementsByTagName(s)[0]; 326
327          if (d.getElementById(id)) return; 328
329          js = d.createElement(s); js.id = id; 330
331          js.src = "//connect.facebook.net/en_US/sdk.js#xfbml=1&appId=210444875773811&version=v2.0"; 332
333          fjs.parentNode.insertBefore(js, fjs);
334
335      })(document, 'script', 'facebook-jssdk');</script>

56. The above code block reflects Facebook’s specific instruction that web developers place the Facebook Javascript code “ideally right after the opening <body> tag.” The instruction is shown below and available at the “Like Button Configurator” <https://developers.facebook.com/docs/plugins/like-button/>:

57. By suggesting that its code appear “ideally right after the opening <body> tag,” Facebook is seeking to have its instructions executed early in the page rendering process, often 1 before other parts of the page are processed.

2 58. For example, when using the Google Chrome web browser to communicate with 3 BJC Healthcare's BarnesJewish.org site, a request to Facebook was made between the first and 4 final HTTP requests:

5 a. The initial communication to BJC via BarnesJewish.org was sent from my 6 computer to BarnesJewish.org at timestamp 2016-07-22T17:36:45.829Z;

7 b. Because Facebook-supplied code on the BJC web site commanded my 8 browser to initiate an HTTP request to Facebook's servers, information 9 relating to my communication to BJC was sent to and acquired by Facebook 10 at timestamp 2016-07-22T17:36:49.467Z;

11 c. The final HTTP request required to render the page was performed by my 12 web browser at timestamp 2016-07-22T17:36:56.043Z.

13 59. The following web sites similarly place Facebook-supplied code in the main body 14 of their page's HTML source code in either July or September, 2016:

- 15 a. altonmemorialhospital.org
- 16 b. barnesjewishwestcounty.org
- 17 c. bjsph.org
- 18 d. boone.org
- 19 e. floridahospital.com/children
- 20 f. missouribaptistsullivan.org.

21 60. Facebook acquires communications attached to personally-identifiable information 22 contemporaneous to their occurrence even on web sites that do not place Facebook code in the 23 main body of their HTML source code.

24 61. For example, many web sites organize their code in customized fashions, or using 25 additional third-party code libraries which manage the deployment of Facebook code. Examples 26 include using social sharing platforms such as AddThis, and code management tools such as 27 Google Tag Manager. The following websites used such techniques in either July or September, 28 2016:

- a. avistahospital.org
- b. cancer.net
- c. cancer.org
- d. castlerockhospital.org
- e. clevelandclinic.org
- f. ctmc.org
- g. flatironsheart.org
- h. melanoma.org
- i. mylittletonhospital.org
- j. parkerhospital.org
- k. parkridgehealth.org
- l. porterhospital.org
- m. www.stlouischildrens.org/our-services/hematologyoncology-services.

62. Despite the different location, Facebook acquires the information relating to user communications with sites such as melanoma.org between the first and final HTTP requests:

- a. The initial communication to Melanoma Research Foundation via melanoma.org was sent from my computer to melanoma.org at timestamp 2016-07-21T18:51:01.675Z;
- b. Because AddThis-supplied code on the Melanoma Research Foundation web site commanded my browser to initiate an HTTP request to Facebook's servers, information relating to my communication to Melanoma Research Foundation was sent to and acquired by Facebook at timestamp 2016-07-21T18:51:03.095Z;
- c. The final HTTP request required to render the page was performed by my web browser at timestamp 2016-07-21T18:51:03.597Z.

63. Attached hereto is, for each relevant web site:

- a. summaries of the timing of:
  - i. communications

1 ii. referer headers

2 iii. cookies

3 64. The above information is provided both for users logged-in and logged-out of 4 Facebook and clearly documents the contemporaneous acquisition by Facebook of user 5 information during the page rendering process.

6 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the 7 foregoing is true and correct.

8 Executed October 14, 2016, at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

13384         Beginning at age 50, both men and women should have a colon cancer screening

13394 People with certain risk factors for colon cancer may need earlier (before age

13403 <li>A personal history of colorectal cancer or polyps</li>

 ... class="Explanation"><h3>Understanding risk factors for colorectal
 ... cancer</h3>Important risk factors for colorectal cancer include family and
 ... personal medical history, especially:

16865 <ul><li>Family history of colorectal cancer or hereditary colorectal
 ... cancer syndromes. Up to 10% of people with colorectal cancer have inherited a genetic ... abnormality tied to this illness.</li><li>Personal history of adenomatous polyps or
 ... chronic inflammatory bowel disease. Adenomatous polyps of the colon or rectum are
 ... noncancerous growths that may develop into cancer if not treated. Chronic
 ... inflammatory bowel disease includes ulcerative colitis and Crohn's
 ... disease.</li></ul>Other factors that increase the risk for colorectal cancer,
 ... according to the ACS:

16866 <ul><li>Being of African-American or Eastern European Jewish ... descent</li><li>Advancing age. About 90% of people with colorectal cancer are 50 or
 ... older.</li><li>Lifestyle choices, particularly, a diet high in red meat and processed
 ... meat, lack of exercise, and smoking</li><li>Excess alcohol consumption (more than two ... drinks a day for men and one drink a day for women).</li><li>Obesity</li><li>Having
 ... type 2 diabetes</li></ul><h3>The Importance of ... screening</h3>Screening is important for preventing colorectal cancer.
 ... Screening can find polyps (growths that can become cancer) and remove them before ... they turn into cancer, the ACS says. Screening can also find cancer early, when it is ... highly curable.People who have no other risk factors except advancing age
 ... should begin regular screening for colorectal cancer at age 50, according to the ACS
 ... and the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force. If you have a family history or other ... risk factors for colorectal cancer, talk with your health care provider about the ... need for screening at an earlier age or for more frequent screening. Several ... screening tests are available, but medical experts differ on which test is better or
 ... how often to get screened.For those who are at least 50 years old and of
 ... average risk for colorectal cancer, the ACS recommends:

16867 <ul><li>A fecal occult blood test (FOBT) or fecal immunochemical test
 ... (FIT) every year, or</li><li>A flexible sigmoidoscopy every 5 years, or</li><li>A
 ... double-contrast barium enema every 5 years, or</li><li>A colonoscopy every 10 years,
 ... or</li><li>A CT colonography (virtual colonoscopy) every 5 years, or</li><li>A stool
 ... DNA test every 3 years</li></ul>The ACS recommends that you begin testing at ... an earlier age or have more frequent screening if you have any of these risk factors:

16868 <ul><li>A family history of colorectal cancer. If your parent, sibling or ... child was diagnosed younger than 60, or you have two immediate family members
 ... diagnosed at any age.</li><li>A family history of hereditary colorectal cancer
 ... syndromes, such as familial adenomatous polyposis (FAP) or hereditary nonpolyposis
 ... colon cancer (HNPCC).</li><li>A personal history of colorectal cancer or adenomatous
 ... polyps.</li><li>A personal history of chronic inflammatory bowel
 ... disease.</li></ul><h3>Description of screening
 ... tests</h3>Fecal occult blood test (FOBT). This test can find hidden
 ... blood in the feces. Small samples of stool are smeared on a card, and a chemical is ... added to look for a color change that means blood is present. This can mean the ... presence of polyps or cancers.Fecal immunochemical test (FIT). This ... test is similar to a fecal occult blood test, but it doesn't require any restrictions
 ... on diet or medications before the test.Flexible sigmoidoscopy. A
 ... slender, flexible, hollow, lighted tube with a small video camera on the end is
 ... inserted through the rectum into the lower part of the colon to look for polyps and
 ... cancers. Any small polyp found may be removed; polyps, even those that aren't
 ... cancerous, eventually may turn into cancer.Colonoscopy. Just as in the

16868... sigmoidoscopy, a slender, flexible, hollow, lighted tube is inserted through the ... rectum into the colon to look for polyps and cancers, but a colonoscope is longer and
... allows the healthcare provider to see the entire length of the colon. If a small
... polyp is found, your provider may remove it. Polyps, even those that are not
... cancerous, eventually may turn into cancer. This test typically requires deeper
... anesthesia than a sigmoidoscopy. You will need someone to drive you home afterward.
... Some people might prefer one of the other screening tests, but if you choose any of ... the other tests and an abnormality is found, you will likely still need a
... colonoscopy.Double-contrast barium enema. Barium sulfate, a chalky
... substance, is used to partially fill and open up the colon. Air is then pumped in to ... expand the colon and rectum. An X-ray of the abdomen shows strictures (narrowed
... areas), obstructions (blockages), and other problems.CT colonography
... (virtual colonoscopy). This test uses computerized tomography (CT) scans to ... examine the colon for polyps or masses. The images are processed by a computer to ... make a 3-D model of the colon. Virtual colonoscopy is noninvasive, although a small
... tube must be inserted into the rectum to pump air into the colon.Stool DNA
... test. This test looks for specific DNA changes from cancer or polyp cells in the ... feces. For this test, an entire stool sample is collected and sent off to a lab for
... testing.<h3>Treatment for colon polyps and colorectal
... cancer</h3>If your health care provider finds a precancerous polyp, it can be ... removed during a colonoscopy. If your provider finds cancer, he or she will recommend
... one of several treatment options. The main types of treatment for colorectal cancer
... are surgery, radiation therapy, chemotherapy, and targeted therapy, the ACS says.
... Depending on how advanced the cancer is, treatments may be combined or used one after ... another.<h3>Reducing your risk for colorectal
... cancer</h3>You can reduce your risk for colorectal cancer by maintaining a ... healthy weight and eating a nutritious diet that includes plenty of fruits,
... vegetables, and whole grains. You should also limit how much red and processed meat
... you eat. You should quit smoking if you smoke and limit how much alcohol you drink.
... You should also get regular exercise. The ACS recommends at least 75 minutes of ... vigorous activity or 150 minutes of moderate physical activity a week.<p
